

Saanich Transit Centre Project Update

August 2025

Thanks for coming by!

We were pleased to connect with close to 50 neighbours this past week at our two open houses. This was the first of many opportunities to connect with the project team and learn more as we plan for future development. Later this fall, we will firm up our demolition plans for the five buildings and will have more detail to share once the contractor and schedule are confirmed.

Bedrock testing this week

The last phase of technical studies is being undertaken August 25 - 30, 2025. The work is not intrusive to neighbours. Expect to see contractors with computer equipment, laying strips of testing material and measuring the impact of a sledgehammer at various points around the properties.

This information will help BC Transit understand the soil and geotechnical conditions of the site for future redevelopment. Bedrock and soil volumes can vary from site to site. If initial testing indicates bedrock close to the surface, the study area may broaden to include the outside perimeter of neighbouring properties. No private property access is required.

Have questions? We'd like to hear from you – email us at saanichtransitcentre@bctransit.com

